

My Dorm Recommendations and Items

Pretty simple, of the ones I would recommend any freshman attempt to get if they can.

Recommendations	Brief Description
Werth Tower	Newest one, mainly for Learning Communities so good luck if you aren't a part of one.
Hilltop Halls	It is somewhat near the middle of all your buildings so wouldn't be too far from the north or south direction. Also is next to Putnam Dining Hall which isn't that bad.
McMahon	Not the best for dorming since it's the most basic, but has a connected dining hall and is one of the late hour ones. Close to Gampel Pavilion so easy walk from that.
West Campus	Similar to McMahon with basic housing, near Gampel, Rec Center, and dining halls between McMahon and South to choose from.
Alumni Quads	Pretty much the same as the West.
Northwest	It is alright, it has Northwest late night dining hall, and has elevators.
Thumb Tacks (Hanging basically anything)	You can patch the tack holes quite easily with a cheap filler product (Nail Hole Patch), soap, paint, etc. You can use command strips but need to use them correctly.

Non Dorm Recommendations and Items

Pretty much the opposite as recommendations.

Towers Quad	Just location. It is right across the Dairy Bar so it has a massive hill to climb if you want to walk that everyday and have to get to class on the other side.
East Campus	Primarily the location as well as it's across the Great Lawn which is a hill and one of the oldest buildings.
North Campus	North isn't the worst, however, when having to do laundry for example. None of the buildings are connected so you have to drag all your clothes up a hill to the main building. The only buildings that are connected to the building are McConaughy, Hurley, and Baldwin.
Command Strips (NEED TO USE CORRECTLY TO WORK FINE)	Command strips probably will rip out parts of your wall and the university will probably charge you for "refixing" the wall. You have to follow the directions and pull the strip DOWN and NOT OUT since that's how removing is supposed to be.

Check-In and Arrival to Campus

<https://reslife.uconn.edu/living-on-campus/check-in-arrival/>

Rough guide to move in process.

Setting Move In date.	On MyHousing around a week before move in weekend, you will select the date and time you want to move in. If you are part of a group (i.e. Sports, Band, Cheer, Dance, etc.), you will select a few days earlier.
Things to Bring.	You need to bring your UConn ID given at orientation, confirmation email of move-in times, and ONE vehicle (You can only bring one during move in).

Where to Collect Keys.	In the website above, click on Res Halls to determine which parking lot you will need to go to get your keys.
Picking up Keys.	Follow the Construction Light Boards indicating the direction of flow you need to go to your designated lot. Be prepared to stay in stand-still traffic waiting to get to your lot. When an RA goes to your car, show them your UConn ID and email, which they will give you a timeslip to stay in the car then guide you to specific "lanes" to park. Once parked, you walk to the tents set up and go pick up your keys.
Arriving at your Residence Hall.	When you arrive to your residence hall, you will show the next RA that timeslip which they will write and give you 15 minutes to unload your vehicle. They'll give you a designated "pile" to put everything and there are several RA's watching your stuff so don't worry about theft. Once unloaded, your parent will need to park in one of the Garages (North or South) which are free for move in weekend.

Alumni Quads
General Review (Outsourced Review)	Alumni is a pretty good place to live as a freshman as its rooms are fairly large compared to other housing that almost require you to have lofted beds if you want space. Saw a few rooms and all seemed rather large compared to my room in Towers. Alumni is also very close to campus as you are across the street from McMahon and maybe a 3 minute walk to Laurel/Union. Pretty far from MSB and TLS. No dining hall designated to it, but you do have South (one of the best grab and go) and McMahon (Late Night) nearby, and you are pretty close to Storrs Center as well.

Buckley (Honors)
General Review (Outsourced Review)	I only visited Buckley once, so most of this is based off of one of my friend's opinions and comments. He did live in a quad, which was very large compared to other quads I saw, but he did mention that doubles were above average as well. This is good but Buckley is very far from anything on campus. Storrs center is right outside your door, but the closest building is the music building. Since Buckley is probably a 5 minute walk from South, you're looking at 20-25 minutes to get to Chem/MSB, so buses are needed.. Luckily, Storrs center is there so you can get Insomnia or Moe's at any time you want.

East Campus

General Review (Outsourced Review)	I'm sorry if you got placed in East as I have never heard anyone say they like it, unless they got a single. I never visited East, but I had friends who lived there and they mentioned how terrible it was. East is fairly average for the most part in terms of room sizes, if not a little bigger, but everything else is horrible. The closest building is FSB which is a 5 minute walk, the dining hall is horrendous, the rooms are generally old and worn down and I believe the showering situation is not the greatest either in terms of privacy. All in all, try to move out.

Hilltop Halls
General Review (Outsourced Review)	Hilltop is a pretty solid place to live as the building/rooms are in good shape and they are fairly decent sized. Nothing huge, but nothing too cramped. This is generally where Freshman Athletes live as well (small heads up), and it is fairly close to campus. It's in a little bit of a weird location and there is a decent hill to get there, but you live right by the gym, so if you ever want to go, it's a walk down a hill. Also very close to MSB and maybe a couple minutes to the center of campus. Does have a red and blue line so can get almost anywhere you want fairly easily. The dining hall shut down last year for renovations, but I went once and liked it a lot. Very big and pretty quiet as well. Food was okay, but I did like the large glass walls. The dining hall is supposed to be redone this year to be two floors and vastly better, but we will see.

McMahon
General Review (Outsourced Review)	McMahon is average, to describe it in the best way possible. The rooms are small, but the average size of most locations. You will most likely need to loft at least one bed, but you can still make it work. McMahon's dining hall is late night and attached to the building, so you can go up until 10pm Sunday-Thursday without leaving your building. However, I personally never liked McMahon as the food is served on small dishes so you feel like a pig getting 4-5 dishes, but that is mainly due to the servings on the plates are tiny and the food is subpar as well. McMahon is nice as it large in terms of the interior of the building, and you are close to everything on campus. Right by Alumni, it is right by the Co-Op (now the Barnes and Noble), so unless you have classes in FSB, MSB or Arjona, you don't have that bad of a walk to classes. Also, this building has elevators, great thing to have.

North Campus
General Review (MY OWN REVIEW)	I had the “great” honor to live in North Campus (Baldwin Hall) (Nickname the Jungle) for my first year. First off, all the other buildings (except Hurley, Baldwin, McConaughy) are NOT connected so you have to walk outside to either do laundry or dining hall. So when trying to select, try to get either Baldwin, Hurley, or McConaughy. The Building could house both sexes, however each floor specifically are single-sex floors. It is as average as a room is, however being SLIGHTLY bigger. There are NO ELEVATORS so have fun walking up flights of stairs every single day, including move in/move out week. I lofted my bed to have my desk under my bed which gave a good amount of room. For some reason, bathrooms get trashed so easily and people don’t decide to clean up after themselves to be prepared for that. Laundry situation is BELOW the dining hall, with an elevator on the left side. Dining Hall isn’t my favorite. Myself, I basically only ate Fried eggs during breakfast as there is an omelet bar, otherwise just eat at Northwest, you’ll thank yourself. Dining Hall was definitely the busiest during Sundae Bar during dinner. Location wise, it’s near all the science buildings so it can be a slight walk to get anywhere else. Bus lines also SUCK since the only buses that even remotely pass by are the Blue Line and Purple Line which only bring you further AWAY from campus.

Northwest
General Review (Outsourced Review)	While Northwest has the smallest rooms on campus on a square foot measurement, they are still more than large enough due to the desks you have. The desks aren't nearly as long, so no lofting is needed, and the rooms are fairly comfortable anyways. Generally, everyone has the same setup in Northwest, and they are pretty nice. The rooms and building are also very nice and are definitely one of the better on campus. Most of the proximity/location is the same as North as the only difference is you are maybe a 30 second walk to the side, so see what I wrote about location for that. Besides all this, Northwest has one of the best dining halls. Northwest might have the largest dining hall, if not, maybe second behind South, but it is also the most popular. Not only does it have late night, but the food is fairly good as well. The actual part where you get your food is cramped and rather small, but there is ample seating and a great selection of food available. All in All, Northwest is probably the best place to live as a freshman, especially if you are a science major.

Shippee (Honors)
General Review (Outsourced Review)	Ok first things first is distance. I had all pre reqs freshman year so second semester all my classes were in MSB or Bio building, which would take about 25-30 minutes to walk. Now rooms- I think my room was actually really nice. Definitely a little smaller than Alumni and North but bigger than Northwest and McMahon. My roommate and I had the traditional room setup. The bathrooms were also very nice. Lots of privacy with separate showers, and again the staff did an excellent job of keeping them very clean. On every other floor (so 2nd, 4th, and 6th) there is a little kitchen area that has a microwave, sink, oven, and stove. Definitely useful. The dining hall options are so so. Buckley is absolutely the worst dining hall on campus, ask anyone who goes to UConn. The breakfast in my opinion is the best on campus (besides east), but lunch and dinner are 100% horrendous. Luckily South and East are within walking distance. Laundry in Shippee is a nightmare, there are 4 washers and 6 dryers for 300 people. Almost impossible to get a spot, so plan accordingly. Gameroom is pretty lacking, has only a pool table and a TV with a couch. My friends and I would always go to Buckley game room because theirs is actually really good, probably second best behind South or McMahon. One last thing, there are 3 sections on each floor (Which are coed) - A, B, and C. A is the girls side, B is the guys side, and then there's C. C rooms are in the middle and are triples sized rooms that are now doubles. They also have their own bathroom (Shower and Toilet) and have an extra walk-in ish closet. The rooms are huge, and have giant windows and giant mirrors on both walls. If you are placed in Shippee, make friends with C room kids. Plenty of Space for multiple people and always had good times hanging with people in their room. Hope this helps!

Towers Quad
General Review (Outsourced Review)	I lived in Towers last year, so I have the most experience to talk about it. Towers is average for almost everything, and they turned it to freshmen only for this year. The rooms in towers are the average size, the same layout as McMahon, and are a little small. I managed to have both beds down for the second semester, and it ended up working, but was definitely cramped. The best option is to have one lofted against a wall and a bed below it perpendicular with a dresser or desk below the lofted bed next to the lowered bed. I did this after my first roommate got expelled and it made the room much larger, and two of my friends did it as well and their room had a great amount of space. The general "vibe" of Towers is pretty open and friendly as it has always been a freshman dominated area, last year being about 95% or so freshmen. The bathrooms get destroyed pretty often, but there are laundry rooms in the basement and the lounges are really nice. In the L shaped buildings, such as Colt-Jefferson, there are two lounges and have just about 100-150 people or so with 4 washers and 4 driers. The U shaped building such as Sousa-Trumbull-Morgan-Lafayette are much bigger and have 3-4 lounges with 8 washers and 8 driers with about 300 people in it. Also nearby are 2 full sized basketball courts and the dining hall, game room and mail room are all right there. Towers is fairly secluded as it is across the street from Horsebarn Hill and the closest building besides Lafayette Classroom is the Chem building which is about a 5 minute walk. Towers is fairly close to the churches and the Hillel House, all of which try to be active and do stuff. The RA's are usually pretty laid back, but there were a few that tried way too hard. The dining hall is decent at best, but is way too small. On most nights for dinner, me and my friends would need to eat near the grab and go. However, Towers does have a good grab and go which runs at the same hours/days as late night and is usually pretty good. Huge downside is it is far from campus as getting to Laurel is about a 12 minute walk. If you have any questions at all about Towers, let me know as I will be able to answer almost anything about it.

Werth Tower
General Review (Outsourced Review)	From what I know about, basically all freshmen try to go to a Learning Community to get into Werth Tower. They are the newest dorms, so it is nicer, however the rooms are slightly smaller. They have Air Conditioning which is probably the main reason people want it, even though it really only gets hot during September and maybe May. They have access to Putnam Refectory, one of the best dining halls out there. Werth Tower is situated next to Garrigus Suites, and Hilltop Halls (I believe many athletes live in these 3 halls) so you also see them riding scooters. Laundry is one main room on the lower level that covers all the people in Werth. Proximity, it's on the hill that's near the sporting complexes and Gampel so it's a walk up a hill of stairs just to get down to the campus.

West Campus

General Review (Outsourced Review)	I have never been in West, but I have seen pictures, and it basically looks like Towers, but in the center of campus. In general, the rooms are the same size so reading what I wrote for Towers should tell you about the room size. The one thing much better though, is the location. West is generally overlooked as it seemed to be an extension of CT Commons, but it is very close to everything. Being located right across the street from McMahon, West is on the same side of the road as Laurel, ITE, School of Business, Union, etc. Also, when the new rec center is built, it will be right next to it. Similar to Alumni, there is not one dining hall for West, but you are right in-between South and McMahon, so it is not an issue. Location is generally good, and nothing is super far away besides Lafayette classroom and Music Building.
